News from the Vorarlberg ski areas

Diedamskopf launched an avalanche warning system

Starting at the end of the 2025/26 winter season, Diedamskopf in the Bregenzerwald became the first ski area in Austria to use the digital avalanche warning system "Avalanche Alerts". Winter sports enthusiasts will automatically receive alerts as soon as they enter a high-risk zone. No dedicated app or registration is required. The alerts are location-based and thus reach approximately 90 percent of smartphones in German-speaking countries.

Standalone Vitamin B Brandnertal pass

Starting in the 2026/27 winter season, the Vitamin B Brandnertal Pass will introduce new, standalone day and multi-day passes for the Brandnertal. With the new Brandnertal Pass, guests will benefit from flexible ticket options, attractive family offers, and special Vitamin B deals. These include "Bring a Friend Friday"—every Friday, a companion receives a 50 percent discount on a ski pass—as well as a free day pass for birthday guests (in winter and summer). The new tickets will be available for booking from late September 2026. Those who book online early benefit from dynamic pricing and save an additional 8 percent compared to purchasing at the ticket counter. The previous multi-day WildPass, which was also valid in the neighboring Montafon region, will no longer be offered in the future.

Silvretta Montafon invests in the Freda Cable Car

The Montafon region is preparing for the FIS World Championships in snowboarding, freestyle, and freeskiing—scheduled for 6 to 21 March 2027—with a variety of investments. A key step is the renovation of the Freda lift at Grasjoch in the Silvretta Montafon. The detachable, high-speed 4-person chairlift with protective covers—which was previously in operation in Sölden—will replace the existing 2-person chairlift.

Walmendingerhornbahn cable car in the Kleinwalsertal valley

After more than 60 years, the Walmendingerhornbahn cable car in the Kleinwalsertal will be replaced by a new gondola lift, which will begin operation on 24 December 2026. The new lift will carry 80 passengers, doubling its capacity. The modernization is all about greater comfort, quality, and barrier-free accessibility. Floor-to-ceiling windows ensure beautiful views. The barrier-free design makes it easier to board with prams, wheelchairs, or sports equipment.

Redesigned: Didi's indoor playground at Diedamskopf

The indoor playground at the Diedamskopf mountain station, which covers around 300 m^2, has been redesigned and has been open since August 2026. In addition to space for jumping, building, and playing, there is now also a real snow groomer for children to explore. The play area is open year-round, free of charge, to families with children during lift operating hours.

The Brandnertal Premium guest card includes mountain railway rides

Holidaymakers receive the Premium Brandnertal guest card after just one overnight stay at one of the region's partner establishments. Starting in winter 2026/27, this card will offer even more benefits. Skiers can use the Schedlerhof Lift—popular with beginners—for free. Pedestrians can ride the Brandnertal cable cars and the Muttersbergbahn near Bludenz for free. Also included is the toboggan pass, which covers toboggan rentals at the Brandnertal cable cars in Brandnertal.

Air conditioning and high-speed Wi-Fi are standard. Parking spaces in the underground car park can be booked, and ski and bicycle storage are available. The two restaurants on the ground floor—the Japanese steakhouse Akiko and the Snash Burger Bar—appeal to both, hotel guests and locals.

The Walser traditional costume as intangible cultural heritage of humanity

The traditional costumes of the Großwalsertal and Kleinwalsertal valleys were added to the Austrian Register of Intangible Cultural Heritage in October 2026. To this day, the traditional costumes are worn at weddings, church festivals, and other occasions. In the Kleinwalsertal, characteristic elements include the pleated "Juppa", the embroidered "Onderrock", and the sequined crown "Chrans".

125 years of the Bregenzerwald Railway and 40 years of museum railway operations

On 15 September 1902, the Bregenzerwaldbahn began operations. The 35-kilometre-long narrow-gauge railway connected Bregenz with Bezau and facilitated the transport of timber, agricultural products, and other goods, as well as the trail for people from the Bregenzerwald to Bregenz and into the Rheintal valley. It thus became an important transportation link and gave new impetus to the region's economic development. After regular rail service was discontinued, the "Wälderbähnle" began operating as a museum railway between Bezau and Schwarzenberg on 26 September 1987. Thus, 2027 will mark two anniversaries: 125 years since the opening of the original railway and 40 years of museum railway operations.

PREVIEW

The Flying Dutchman on the lakeside stage

In the summer of 2027, Giuseppe Verdi's “La traviata” will be performed once again on the lakeside stage, followed by Wagner's “The Flying Dutchman” in 2028 and 2029. The premiere is on 19 July 2028. The opera, which tells the story of a cursed sailor's odyssey who can find redemption only through true love, will be staged by American director Yuval Sharon, who previously directed "The Excursions of Mr. Brouček" at the Festspielhaus during the 2026 festival. British artist Es Devlin is responsible for the set design. She returns to Lake Constance following her work on "Carmen" (2017/18). Wagner's work, which premiered in 1843, will be performed on Lake Constance for the third time, following productions in 1973 and 1989/90.

Personalities from Vorarlberg

Olympic champion Alessandro Hämmerle

When the FIS World Championships in snowboarding, freestyle, and freeski take place in the Montafon from 6 to 21 March 2027, the people of Vorarlberg will be cheering on one athlete in particular: Alessandro Hämmerle, a two-time Olympic champion who grew up in Gaschurn in the Montafon. His specialty is snowboard cross, a competition in which a group of at least four riders tackle a downhill course simultaneously. Alessandro Hämmerle won the gold medal in this event at the 2022 Olympic Games in Beijing and again in 2026 in Milan-Cortina. The athlete prefers to spend his free time at home with his wife, family, and friends. In the summer, he has recently been spotted more and more often on golf courses, as that's where he can really unwind.

The unconventional museum director Stefania Pitscheider Soraperra

Stefania Pitscheider Soraperra, born in Brixen, South Tyrol, and a native speaker of Ladin, studied art and architectural history, history, philosophy, and archaeology in Vienna, Graz, and Salzburg. She worked at institutions including the Kunsthistorisches Museum and the Kunsthalle Wien before taking over as director of the Women's Museum in Hittisau in 2009. The fact that a small museum in the Bregenzerwald, of all places, became the centre of her life fits with her vision of culture: it should not take place in an ivory tower, but rather address social issues, spark discussions, and bring people together. At the Women's Museum, she works with her team to make women's and gender history visible and to shed light on current social issues from a gender perspective. The exhibitions are developed through dialogue with a wide range of people, whose experiences and knowledge continually open up new perspectives.
